Based on the results of the evaluation, the County will award the, 07RFP54988K-JD to the most advantageous Proposer based on the cost and the evaluation factors set forth in the RFP.

1.2 PROJECT DESCRIPTION

As part of Fulton County's long range comprehensive strategic planning process, the Fulton County Department Health & Wellness proposes to renovate and expand the Neighborhood Union Health Center.

This project involves complete professional site and building design and construction administration services for renovation of the existing building and for a new, 7,500 single story addition, and related site work, to the rear of the existing building in order to double the size of the facilities. The facility, originally constructed in the 1950's consists of a one-story 7,480 gross sq. ft. public health facility.

The county is interested in obtaining a LEED Silver rating for this project. The County intends that the site and building design maximize energy efficiency and water conservation. The project design shall minimize adverse environmental impact through energy efficiency, resource conservation, water conservation, site design and indoor air quality. NOTE: Any additional A/E fees associated with the LEED approach to design and construction shall be provided in a separate fee proposal included under Exhibit 1.

1.3 BACKGROUND

- A. The Neighborhood Union Health Center has been serving the Vine City community since its construction in 1955. The Fulton County Health and Wellness Department, under the current leadership of Dr. Steven Katkowski, has expressed an interest in consolidating services that are presently remotely located in leased office spaces. Consolidating these services within the Neighborhood Union Health Center will require doubling the building's present 7,500 square foot area.
- B. In 2006, the Department of Health & Wellness made application to the Atlanta Development Authority for funding under the West Side Tax Allocation District (TAD) and funding was approved. In addition to the TAD funding, the Fulton County Board of Commissioners approved funding for the renovation and expansion project based on TAD funding approval.
- C. The Neighborhood Union Health Center is located within the City of Atlanta Special Public Interest District SPI 11 serving the Vine City and Ashby Station District. The property is within the SA7 sub-area of the SPI 11 district that has been reserved for multifamily residential. The district was created by the Atlanta City Council in 2004 to preserve, protect, and enhance the existing single-family residential neighborhoods within the neighborhood while encouraging commercial and multi-family development within selected sub-areas. The health center was present prior to the creation of the SPI. Any significant modifications to the building and property will need to be approved through a Special Use Permit (see SPI-11 Use Table in Appendix B).

1.4 COUNTY OBJECTIVES

- A. For the selected consultant to provide expertise, resources and personnel experienced in the various phases of planning, design and engineering of health related project within schedule and within the designated owner approved budget.
- B. Services shall include but not be limited to, programming, all design and engineering services, space planning, FFE selection, bid specifications and documents and construction administration services for the bidding and construction of the renovation and expansion of the Neighborhood Union Health Center.
- C. The County intends that the site and building design and engineering maximize energy efficiency and water conservation. Design and engineering shall minimize adverse environmental impact through energy efficiency, resource conservation, water conservation, site design and indoor air quality.

Any such exclusion may cause prohibition of your firm from participating in any procurement by the Fulton County Government.
- (2) If the Offeror is unable to certify to any of the statements in this certification, such Offeror or subcontractor shall attach an explanation to this bid or proposal.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR CERTIFICATION

By signing and submitting this certification, the Offeror is providing the certification set out below:

- (1) The certification in this clause is a material representation of fact upon which reliance will be placed. If it is later determined that the prospective vendor knowingly rendered a false certification, the Purchasing Agent may pursue all available remedies, including suspension and/or debarment, for withdrawal of award or termination of a contract.
- (2) The prospective Offeror shall provide immediate written notice to the Purchasing Agent if at anytime the Offeror learns that its certification was erroneous when submitted or has become erroneous by reason of changed circumstances.
- (3) Offeror shall be under a continuing duty to immediately inform the Purchasing Agent in writing of any changes, if as a result of such changes, the Offeror certification regarding debarment is affected.

DEBARMENT ORDINANCE

The following Section 2-322 of Fulton County Code of Laws establishes the procedure for the debarment of contractors.

(a) Authority to suspend.

After reasonable notice to the entity involved and reasonable opportunity for that entity to be heard, the Purchasing Agent, after consultation with user department, the County Manager and the County Attorney shall have the authority to suspend an entity for cause from consideration for award of county contracts. As used in this section, the term entity means any business entity, individual, firm, contractor, subcontractor or business corporation, partnership, limited liability corporation, firm, contractor, subcontractor or business structured; provided, further, that any such entity shall also be subject to suspension under this section if any of its constituents, members, subcontractors at any tier of such entity's and the entity, or any constituent or member, knew or should have known of the commission of the act. The suspension shall be for a period not to exceed three (3) years unless cause is based on a felony conviction for an offense related or associated with fraudulent contracting or misappropriation of funds wherein the suspension shall not exceed seven (7) years.

(b) Causes for Suspension. The causes for suspension include:

- 1) Conviction for commission of a criminal offense as an incident to obtain or attempting to obtain a public or private contract or subcontract, or in performance of such contract or subcontract;
- 2) Conviction of state or federal statutes of embezzlement, theft, forgery, bribery, falsification or destruction of records, receiving stolen property or other offense indicating a lack of business integrity or business honesty which currently, seriously and directly affects responsibility as a county contractor.
- 3) Conviction of state or federal anti-trust statutes arising out of the solicitation and submission of bids and proposals;
- 4) Violation of contract provisions, as set forth below, of a character which is regarded by the Purchasing Agent to be so serious as to justify suspension action:
 - a. Failure to perform in accordance with the specifications within a time limit provided in a county contract;
 - b. A recent record of failure to perform or unsatisfactory performance in accordance with the terms of one or more contracts; provided, that failure to perform or unsatisfactory performance caused by acts beyond the control of the contractor shall not be considered to be a basis for suspension;
 - c. Material representation of the composition of the ownership or workforce or business entity certified to the county as a minority business enterprise; or
 - d. Falsification of any documents.
- i. For violation of the ethical standards set forth in Fulton County Code Chapter 9, Code of Ethics.
- ii. Knowing misrepresentation to the county, of the use which a majority owned contractor intends to make a minority business enterprise (a business entity at least 51 percent of which is owned and controlled by minority persons, as defined in Fulton County Code Chapter 6, Article B, Minority Business Enterprise Affirmative Action Program and certified as such by the County) as a subcontractor or a joint venture partner, in performing work under contract with the County.

6.1 NON-DISCRIMINATION IN CONTRACTING AND PROCUREMENTS

It is the policy of Fulton County Government that discrimination against businesses by reason of the race, color, gender or national origin of the ownership of any such business is prohibited. Furthermore, it is the policy of the Board of Commissioners ("Board") that Fulton County and all vendors and contractors doing business with Fulton County shall provide to all businesses the opportunity to participate in contracting and procurement paid, in whole or in part, with monetary appropriations of the Board. Similarly, it is the policy of the Board that the contracting and procurement practices of Fulton County should not implicate Fulton County as either an active or passive participant in the discriminatory practices engaged in by private contractors or vendors seeking to obtain contracts with Fulton County.

Equal Business Opportunity Plan (EBO Plan): In addition to the proposal submission requirements, each vendor must submit an Equal Business Opportunity Plan (EBO Plan) with their bid/proposal. The EBO Plan is designed to enhance the utilization of a particular racial, gender or ethnic group by a bidder/proposer, contractor, or vendor or by Fulton County. The respondent must outline a plan of action to encourage and achieve diversity and equality in the available procurement and contracting opportunities with this solicitation.

The EBO Plan must identify and include:

1. Potential opportunities within the scope of work of this solicitation that will allow for participation of racial, gender or ethnic groups.
2. Efforts that will be made by the bidder/proposer to encourage and solicit minority and female business utilization in this solicitation.

Fulton County encourages joint ventures, teaming, partnering and mentor-protégé relationships with minority and female businesses in an effort to achieve contracting and procurement diversity.

Prompt Payment: The prime contractor must certify in writing and must document on the Exhibit G Form (Prime Contractor/Subcontractor Utilization Report) that all subcontractors, sub-consultants and suppliers have been promptly paid for work and materials, (less any retainage by the prime contractor prior to receipt of any further progress payments). In the event the prime contractor is unable to pay subcontractors, sub-consultants or suppliers until it has received a progress payment from Fulton County, the prime contractor shall pay all subcontractors, sub-consultants or suppliers funds due from said progress payment within forty-eight (48) hours of receipt of payment from Fulton County. In no event shall a subcontractor, sub-consultant or supplier be paid later than fifteen (15) days as provided for by state law.

6.2 REQUIRED FORMS AND EBO PLAN

In order to be compliant with the intent and provisions of the Fulton County Non-Discrimination in Purchasing and Contracting Ordinance (99-0960), bidders/proposers must submit the following completed documents. Attention: Mr. Brian O'Neill, Project Manager

Subject: Subsurface Exploration
Neighborhood Union Health Center Addition
186 Sunset Avenue
Atlanta, Georgia
QORE Job No. 27364, Report No. 325526

Gentlemen:

QORE, Inc. has completed a subsurface exploration for the referenced project in general accordance with our Proposal No. 06-1066 dated October 4, 2006, as authorized by Mr. Michael Katzin on October 6, 2006. The purpose of the exploration was to obtain subsurface data so that we could evaluate foundation systems, general rock and groundwater levels at the site, earthwork procedures, and excavation conditions. This report describes our understanding of the project and the subsurface conditions encountered, and contains our recommendations for: foundations; slabs; general earthwork procedures, including fill compaction and slab and pavement subgrade preparation; retaining walls; and other geotechnical issues.

PROJECT INFORMATION

From the provided site plan and our conversations, we understand that a 7500-square-foot, stand alone addition to the Neighborhood Union Health Center will be constructed in the northwest portion of the existing Health Center property. The only connection to the existing Health Center building will be a short corridor between the northwest corner of the existing structure and the addition. From our conversations, we expect the finished floor elevation of the addition will be at or several feet above the floor elevation of the existing building. The floor slab will be concrete-on-grade and we assume that the building will be steel-framed with an exterior of masonry, light gauge metal studs with a brick veneer, or similar. Maximum column loads are expected to be 75 kips or less and wall loads should be about 2000 pounds per linear foot or less. We are aware of no heavy loading conditions for the floor slab or any special slab performance criteria.

A six-car capacity addition to the parking lot west of the existing building will be constructed immediately south of the building addition. Several low to moderate height site retaining walls may be required to accommodate grade changes associated with the building and parking lot additions. The locations and heights of the walls will be affected by the finished floor elevation of the building addition. We expect the retaining walls to be of cast-in-place reinforced concrete construction.

EXPLORATION AND TESTING PROCEDURES

Field sampling and testing by QORE, Inc. are in general accordance with ASTM procedures and established geotechnical engineering practice in the metropolitan Atlanta area. The Appendix contains brief descriptions of field procedures as well as the data obtained.

Our project engineer made a brief site reconnaissance to observe pertinent site and topographic features as well as surface indications of the site geology. During the reconnaissance our engineer located four soil test borings and three hand auger borings by using a compass and taping or pacing from existing features indicated on the provided site plan. We note that five soil test borings were proposed, but the presence of a fence in the northern part of the planned building area and trees in the northwestern part of the building area necessitated shifting planned boring locations, eliminating one soil test boring and adding three hand auger borings near the northern building line. Ground surface elevations at the borings are unknown as we have not been provided a topographic map. Because of the methods used, the boring locations shown on the Boring Location Plan in the Appendix are approximate.

Soil Test Borings 1 through 4 were made by mechanically twisting hollow-stem augers into the soil. Soil samples were obtained at 2¹/₂- to 5-foot depth intervals with a standard 1.4-inch I.D., 2-inch O.D. split-barrel sampler. The sampler was first seated 6 inches and then driven an additional foot with blows of 140-pound hammer falling 30 inches. The number of hammer blows required to drive the sampler the final foot was recorded and is designated the "standard penetration resistance" with units of blows per foot (bpf).

The samples obtained during standard penetration testing in the soil test borings were returned to our laboratory and reviewed by our staff and senior engineers. The purposes of this review were to check the field descriptions, visually estimate the relative percentages of the soils' constituents (sand, clay, etc.), determine soil origin, and identify pertinent structural features such as foliation planes and slickensides. The stratification lines shown on the Test Boring Records represent the approximate boundaries between soil types, but the transitions may be more gradual than shown.

Borings HA-1 through HA-3 were drilled using hand operated equipment. Portable cone penetrometer tests were performed at depths of 1, 3, 5, and 7 feet as the borings were advanced unless shallower auger refusal or the boring termination occurred. A brief description of the hand auger boring and penetrometer test procedure is included in the Appendix.

SITE AND SUBSURFACE CONDITIONS

SITE CONDITIONS

The site is located at 186 Sunset Avenue, Atlanta, Georgia. The location of the proposed 7,500-square-foot building is in the northwest corner of the property, north of the west parking lot, and west of the existing building. The site gently slopes up from the north end of the parking lot to approximately 40 feet north of the existing building where there is a barbed-wire fence, and then slopes back down to a small wooden cross-tie retaining wall. The retaining wall is near and parallels the drive for a housing development on the adjacent property. The existing east to west grades slope up rapidly from a 3- to 4-foot high cross-tie retaining wall at the sidewalk next to the existing building and then gradually slope down to the west. Overall, much of the building site appeared to be 8 to 10 feet above the existing building's floor elevation.

There are sporadic large trees on the site. Undergrowth is thick in the northwest corner of the site and thins out going toward the southwest corner of the proposed building. Surficial debris comprised of asphalt pieces and broken pieces of concrete and/or masonry units were observed along the central and northern parts of the west side of the planned building area.

AREA GEOLOGY

The project site is in Georgia's Piedmont physiographic province. The soil overburden of this area is residuum formed by in-place weathering of the parent rocks. A typical upland Piedmont soil profile consists of thin topsoil underlain by a few feet of clayey soils that transition with increasing depth into less clayey, coarser grained silts and sands with varying mica content. Separating the completely weathered soil overburden from the unaltered parent rock is a transition zone of residuum with penetration resistances of more than 100 bpf which is locally described as partially weathered rock. Partially weathered rock retains much of the appearance and fabric of the parent rock formations, and may consist of thinly interlayered very hard or dense soil and rock.

The weathering processes that formed the overburden soils and partially weathered rock were extremely variable, depending on such factors as rock mineralogy, past groundwater conditions, and the tectonic history (joints, faults, and igneous intrusions) of the specific area. Differential weathering of the rock mass has resulted in erratically varying subsurface conditions, evidenced by abrupt changes in soil type and consistency in relatively short horizontal and vertical distances. Depths to rock can be irregular and isolated boulders, discontinuous rock layers, or rock pinnacles can be present within the overburden and transition zones.

SUBSURFACE CONDITIONS

All borings except HA-2 initially penetrated about 4 to 12 inches of topsoil. Boring HA-2 encountered 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ feet of fill from the ground surface. Below the topsoil in Borings 1 and HA-1, a 1-to 1¹/₂-foot layer of fill and apparent debris was encountered. Sampling of the upper material at Boring 1 yielded no recovery at 1 foot, but the fill encountered in Borings HA-1 and HA-2 consisted of generally very stiff clayey silt and sandy silt (penetration resistance of 20+ blows per increment [bpi]).

Beneath the topsoil and/or fill, Piedmont residual soils were encountered. With the exception of Boring 1, the residual soil profile typically consisted of several feet of red-brown silty clay or clayey silt which transitioned into multicolored silty sands or sandy silts. Standard penetration resistance values in the residual soils ranged from 13 to 52 bpf and penetrometer test values were 11 to 20 bpi. With the exception of Boring 4, all of the soil test borings were terminated in residual soil at their planned depths of 20 or 25 feet.

Boring 4 was drilled to auger refusal to allow a determination of an appropriate seismic site classification. Below the topsoil, Boring 4 encountered residual soils similar to those described above to a depth of 42 feet. Partially weathered rock was penetrated from 42 to 48 feet below the surface, then refusal to further auger advancement occurred on apparent rock.

Hand Auger Boring HA-1 met refusal at a depth of 2 feet and was then offset a few feet away where refusal occurred at a depth of 1 foot. Refusal apparently occurred on small pieces of rock in or just below the surficial fill. Borings HA-2 and HA-3 were terminated at 7 and 5 feet below the surface, respectively.

There was no indication of groundwater at the time of drilling. The borings were backfilled at the end of the day of drilling after secondary water level checks again indicated no water collected in the boreholes.

The preceding has been a generalized description of subsurface conditions. Test Boring Records in the Appendix contain more specific soil descriptions for each boring.

LIMITATIONS OF CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

This report is for the exclusive use of Fulton County Building Construction Division and their designers for specific application to the referenced site. Our conclusions and recommendations have been prepared using generally accepted standards of geotechnical engineering practice in the State of Georgia. No other warranty is expressed or implied. This company is not responsible for the conclusions, opinions, or recommendations of others based on these data.

Our conclusions and recommendations are based on the conceptual project information furnished to us, the data obtained from the subsurface exploration, and our past experience. They do not reflect variations in the subsurface conditions that may exist between our borings and in unexplored areas of the site due to past land use, grading, and local geologic conditions. If such variations become apparent during construction, it will be necessary for us to re-evaluate our conclusions and recommendations based upon on-site observation of the conditions.

If the overall design or location of the proposed building and pavements is changed, the recommendations contained in this report must not be considered valid unless the changes are reviewed by our firm and our recommendations modified or verified in writing. When the design is finalized, we should be given the opportunity to review the foundation plan, grading plan, and applicable portions of the project specifications. This review will allow us to check whether these documents are consistent with the intent of our recommendations.

Our firm is not responsible for interpretation of the data contained in this report by others, nor do we accept any responsibility for job-site safety, which is the sole responsibility of the contractor.

CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

GENERAL DISCUSSION

The boring data indicate that the building can be supported by a shallow foundation system bearing on residual soils. We expect the site to be cut several feet to achieve finished grade, although the finished floor elevation of the proposed building is unknown at this time. If the site is cut to achieve finished grade, there may be a need for retaining walls along the west, east and/or north sides of the building. The boring data indicate that these retaining walls can also be supported by shallow foundation systems bearing on the residual soils or new compacted fill. Wall height will vary with the chosen building floor slab elevation.

EARTHWORK RECOMMENDATIONS

We expect the proposed building area to be cut several feet to as much as 10 feet to reach finished grade. There will also likely be several feet of excavation in the parking lot expansion area. If the building and parking lot expansion will be closer to the existing grades, then organics, stumps, topsoil and large root systems as well as any surficial or near-surface debris that is encountered should be stripped from the building and pavement areas. We expect that shallow fill that exists in scattered locations will also be removed in reaching finished subgrade elevations.

In areas that are cut to grade or in any areas to be filled, our engineer should observe the subgrade and evaluate its firmness and stability. The evaluation should include observation of proofrolling of the surface with a loaded tandem-axle dump truck. Any upper soils that are found to be soft or unstable should be undercut if they cannot be aerated, dried and compacted to a stable condition.

Where needed, structural fill can be placed after the subgrade evaluation/remediation has been completed. Structural fill is defined for this project as inorganic natural soil with a maximum particle size of 4 inches and a Plasticity Index of 30 or less. Structural fill, including utility trench backfill, should be placed in relatively thin (4- to 8-inch) layers and compacted to at least 95 percent of the soil's maximum dry density as determined by the standard Proctor compaction test (ASTM D698). Because pavement support characteristics of Piedmont soils typically improve with greater density, we suggest requiring a slightly higher degree of compaction (98 percent) in the upper 12 inches beneath planned pavements.

Excavated overburden soils can be used as structural fill. Some moisture conditioning may be needed to achieve a moisture content that is compatible with achieving a high degree of compaction if grading takes place during or shortly after wet seasonal conditions.

In-place density testing must be performed to check that the recommended compaction criteria are achieved. A suggested testing frequency for this project is one test for every 2,500 square feet of mass fill in the building area, one test per 5,000 square feet in the pavement area, and one test for every 100 linear feet of utility trench backfill. Density tests should be performed at vertical intervals of 2 feet or less as the fill is being placed. The tests should be performed by a qualified technician working under the direction of a geotechnical engineer.

EXCAVATION DIFFICULTY

Our boring data do not indicate the likelihood of encountering excavation difficulty due to rock, partially weathered rock or groundwater in reaching finished building or pavement grades or installing on-site utilities to depths of 10 feet or less below finished grades. Thus, we expect that conventional equipment can be used for mass excavation and for footing and utility installation. While encountering excavation difficulty appears unlikely, we again note that rock elevations in the Piedmont geology can vary significantly over short horizontal distances.

FOUNDATION RECOMMENDATIONS

The findings of the exploration indicate that the planned building can be supported by shallow footings bearing on residual soil or new compacted structural fill after completion of site preparation as discussed in this report. We recommend use of a maximum net allowable soil bearing pressure of up to 3,000 psf to size column and strip footings supported by these materials.

Although computed footing dimensions may be less, column footings should be at least 24 inches wide and strip footings should be at least 18 inches wide. These dimensions facilitate densification and hand cleaning of footing subgrades disturbed by the excavation process as well as the placement of reinforcing steel. They also reduce the potential for localized punching shear failure. If turned-down slab foundations are employed, these minimum width recommendations do not apply, but the recommended bearing pressure must not be exceeded. All exterior footing bottoms should be at least 12 inches below the lowest adjacent exterior grade to prevent damage from frost penetration.

In resisting lateral forces, the coefficient of friction between the soil and the foundation concrete can be assumed to be 0.4.

All footing excavations must be evaluated by a representative of our firm to check for soil conditions compatible with our design recommendations. This evaluation should include performance of shallow hand auger borings coupled with portable cone penetrometer tests. We can provide geotechnical recommendations to the contractor and/or designers should unforeseen soil conditions be encountered during construction.

Footing excavation often produces a thin veneer of disturbed soil at the footing subgrade. We recommend that this disturbed soil be hand cleaned prior to placing reinforcing steel. Furthermore, the footing bottoms should be free of all fall-in prior to placing concrete.

The strength properties of soil exposed at the footing subgrade will change if exposed to wetting, drying, or freezing. Every effort should be made to place concrete the same day as the excavation is completed. If footing subgrades are to be left open for more than one day, they should be covered with polyethylene sheeting. If inclement weather is expected and the excavations have been approved, a lean (1,000 psi) concrete veneer about 3 inches thick should be placed on the exposed subgrade. Excavation of disturbed soil may be required if these protective measures are not implemented.

SEISMIC SITE CLASSIFICATION

It is our understanding that the finished grade of the building may vary from near the existing site grades to matching the floor elevation of the existing building. Because of the particular soil consistency indicated by the borings, only a few feet of variation in finished floor elevation will dictate whether or not the appropriate seismic site classification based upon IBC 2000 should be D or C. For planning purposes, we suggest that Class D be assumed. We can review the soil conditions and determine the appropriate seismic site classification after site topography and appropriate finished floor elevations are provided to us. At that time, it is possible that designing in accordance with IBC 2006 may be required instead of using IBC 2000 guidelines.

RETAINING WALL RECOMMENDATIONS

We expect that retaining walls will be utilized at grade changes around portions of the building perimeter. We expect reinforced, cast-in-place concrete walls to be employed for this project. Where retaining walls are free to deflect or rotate, they may be designed for the "active" earth pressure condition. Where retaining walls are not free to rotate, we suggest using the "at-rest" earth pressure condition.

Soils behind the retaining walls are assumed to exert a triangular stress distribution which can be modeled in terms of an "equivalent fluid" for both the active and at-rest cases. If a uniform area surcharge is applied behind the wall, a portion of the surcharge is transferred to the wall in the form of a uniform or rectangular lateral stress distribution. The magnitude of the lateral stress transferred to the wall is a function of the soil's strength and the permissible degree of deflection or rotation. It is computed by multiplying the soil's "earth pressure coefficient" by the magnitude of the surcharge. The following table contains values of earth pressure coefficients and equivalent fluid unit weights for both the active and at-rest earth pressure conditions.

Earth Pressure Condition	Earth Pressure Coefficient	Recommended Equivalent Fluid Unit Weight, pcf
Active, Horizontal Backfill	0.36	40
At-Rest, Horizontal Backfill	0.53	60

For site retaining walls constructed just beyond the building perimeter, the footings can be designed using a maximum allowable toe pressure of 3,000 psf. Evaluation of soil conditions at the various footing locations should be conducted as described in the "Foundation Recommendations" section. Passive earth pressure of soil adjacent to the footing as well as soil friction at the footing base may be used to resist sliding. The friction coefficient between the concrete footing and soil can be assumed as 0.4. For computations, the ultimate passive soil resistance may be assumed to act as a fluid with an equivalent unit weight of 300 pcf. For computing soil friction at the footing base, soil placed above the footing can be assumed to have a unit weight of 115 pcf. We suggest that a safety factor of at least 2.0 be used to determine restraining forces because no strength tests have been performed on the soils and because the simplified earth pressure theory (Rankine) was used to estimate the soil's passive resistance.

The recommended earth pressure coefficients and other values assume that there are level ground surfaces on both sides of the walls and that constantly functioning drainage systems will be installed between any walls and soil backfill to prevent the build-up of hydrostatic pressures and lateral stresses in excess of those calculated for drained conditions.

Wall drainage systems should consist of a filtered granular backfill (No. 57 size crushed stone) or a manufactured material such as Enkadrain or Miradrain. The drainage medium should extend to within 2 feet of the ground surface in exterior areas. Compacted structural fill should be placed over the drainage medium to prevent direct surface water inflow. The drainage medium should be connected to a positive draining footing drain or weepholes. If a crushed stone drainage medium is used, we recommend that it be separated from the surrounding soil by a non-woven geotextile filter cloth such as Mirafi 140NL. A non-woven geotextile fabric should also be placed between the weephole openings and crushed stone.

Other than granular drainage backfill or manufactured drainage material immediately behind the walls, compacted structural fill may be used as backfill behind the retaining walls. We recommend that these materials be compacted to at least 95 percent of their standard Proctor maximum dry density. Light, hand-operated compaction equipment should be used within about 6 feet of walls to reduce the risk of over-stressing the walls, or the walls must be designed to resist the stresses imposed by large compaction equipment.

MECHANICALLY STABILIZED EARTH SITE RETAINING WALLS

It is possible that the site retaining walls will be mechanically stabilized earth (MSE) walls. Such walls are a proprietary design and usually require field and laboratory soil testing specific to the requirements or assumptions by a particular designer. We would be pleased to perform any laboratory testing and additional drilling needed by the wall designer to allow him to verify that the on-site soils meet the intent of his design. While this can be done on behalf of Fulton County Building Construction Division, we feel that such services should be part of the wall contractor's design/build package.

FLOOR SLAB RECOMMENDATIONS

The floor slab can be supported by residual soil or new structural fill after site preparation/remediation as previously discussed. Because some minor differential settlement is possible, the floor slab should be structurally separate from the building column and wall foundations to reduce the chance for slab cracking. Alternately, the transition from the slab-on-grade to these structural elements can be reinforced.

Because no shallow groundwater was encountered in the borings, we believe that an underslab drainage layer is optional. The floor slab should, however, be underlain by an effective and durable vapor barrier, which will reduce the possibility of slab dampness due to upward migration of soil moisture.

Between completion of grading and slab construction, floor slab subgrades are often disturbed by weather, footing and utility line installation, and other construction activities. For this reason, the subgrade should be evaluated by a geotechnical engineer immediately prior to placing an underslab granular layer and/or the slab. Areas judged by the geotechnical engineer to be soft or loose should be undercut and replaced with crushed stone or soil fill compacted to at least 95 percent of the standard Proctor maximum dry density.

EARTH SLOPES

We do not expect there to be any permanent slopes of more than a few feet in height, but temporary slopes of up to 10 feet high may be necessary. Permanent cut and fill slopes should be inclined no steeper than 2H:1V and temporary slopes should be no steeper than 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ H:1V. The building area should be set back at least 10 feet from the crest of any slope that is more than 3 feet high. Pavement curbs should not be constructed within 3 feet of any slope crest. Care must be taken to compact soil within any required fill slope to meet our recommendations for structural fill.

PAVEMENT SUBGRADE RECOMMENDATIONS

We recommend that the pavement subgrade be proofrolled with a loaded tandem-axle dump truck immediately prior to placing the base course. The proofrolling should be witnessed by a representative of our engineering staff. Any areas judged to perform unacceptably should be selectively undercut and replaced with structural fill compacted to at least 98 percent of its standard Proctor maximum dry density or with additional graded aggregate base compacted to meet the pavement base course compaction criterion.

We have not performed a site-specific pavement design study. If requested, we can perform such a study after being provided with traffic information and obtaining soil samples for performance of California Bearing Ratio (CBR) tests.

PROCEDURES

INTRODUCTION

QORE, Inc. performs tests in general accordance with the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) or the United States Army Corps of Engineers procedures. These procedures are generally recognized as the basis for uniformity and consistency of test results in the geotechnical engineering profession. All work is initiated and supervised by qualified engineers. Our tests are performed by skilled technicians trained in either ASTM or Corps procedures. Our equipment is well maintained, and our laboratory equipment is calibrated at least yearly.

Subsequent portions of this Appendix present briefly describe of our testing procedures. Where applicable, we have referenced these procedures to either ASTM or the Corps of Engineers standards which contain specific descriptions of apparatus, procedures, reporting, etc.

PROCEDURES

SOIL TEST BORING, ASTM D-1586

The borings were made with a hollow-stem auger powered by a 125-horsepower drill rig. At regular intervals, soil samples were obtained through the hollow augers with a standard 1.4-inch I.D., 2.0-inch O.D. split-tube sampler.

The sampler was initially seated 6 inches to penetrate any loose cuttings; then driven an additional foot with blows of a 140-pound hammer falling 30 inches. The number of hammer blows required to drive the sampler the final foot was recorded and is designated as the standard penetration resistance. Penetration resistance, when properly evaluated, is an index to soil strength and density.

In the field, the driller logged and described the samples as they were obtained. Representative portions of each soil sample were then sealed in labeled glass jars and transported to our laboratory. The samples were examined by a graduate geotechnical engineer or engineering geologist to visually check the field descriptions. Boring data, including sample intervals, penetration resistances, soil descriptions, and groundwater level are shown on the attached Test Boring Records.

PROCEDURES

HAND AUGER BORINGS WITH PORTABLE CONE PENETROMETER TESTS

The borings were made by manually twisting a post-hole auger into the soil. The auger consists of a two curved blades and a bucket which retains the soil as the auger is advanced. At regular intervals, the hand auger was removed from the boring and cone penetrometer soundings were performed with a dynamic portable cone penetrometer. The device has a 1.5-inch diameter, 45-degree cone point with a surface area of 3.9 inches which is driven with a 15-pound steel weight on a guide rod.

After the cone point was completely embedded at the test depth it was driven an additional $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches by the steel weight falling 20 inches onto a steel anvil. The number of hammer blows required to drive the cone the $1\frac{3}{4}$ -inch increment was recorded as the "penetration resistance" in units of blows per increment. Penetration resistance, when properly evaluated, is an index to the soil's strength, compressibility, and density.
