Fulton County, Georgia (“County”) is soliciting proposals from qualified proposers to provide a full range of program management services necessary to facilitate construction and expansion of various libraries. The program consists of two (2) phases. Phase I will consist of the new construction of eight (8) libraries, and two (2) major expansions of the Auburn Avenue Research Library and South Fulton Library. Phase II will consist of the renovation and expansion of twenty-three (23) branch libraries, and a new Central Library (dependent upon obtaining private sector funding) or the major renovation and expansion of the current Central Library. Program management and other related professional services will begin during the planning phase of each project and continue through the construction close-out and warranty periods of all facilities.

1.3 BACKGROUND

Section 1

Atlanta-Fulton Public Library System Facility Master Plan

The stakeholders of the Atlanta-Fulton Public Library System have realized for some time that a comprehensive master plan for library facilities is needed. It was clear that our Board of Commissioners and Library Board of Trustees needed and wanted a plan to guide decisions on facilities: identifying where citizens are unserved, where they are underserved, where libraries are most needed, what is the optimal size, and what improvements need to be made to our existing facilities—a plan that will examine these issues for the entire service area, not just one neighborhood or community. Most importantly, this much needed and desired plan must be fair, unbiased, and based on good information and valid, authoritative data. We believe this plan accomplishes this.

On July 16, 2008, the Fulton County Board of Commissioners voted to place a $275 million bond referendum on the November 4, 2008 ballot to implement the Library's Facility Master Plan. The referendum was approved with 65% support.

The Facility Master Plan is exclusively focused on facilities, not on collections, services, or programs within our libraries. Determining these service needs is ongoing—and the input of our citizens and library staff is critical as we evaluate and plan for new and renovated libraries. As new facilities are built, community involvement will be essential. Branch libraries should not be mirrors of each other. A cookie-cutter approach will not work for our urban, suburban and rural system where we serve diverse communities with different needs. It is also important to note that superb library service can be delivered from all library sizes.

The Central Library has the potential to be an even more important asset to downtown Atlanta. It must effectively serve those who live and work downtown as well as visitors and tourists. While this is a critical role, it must be only part of the mission of the Central Library. Central has a valuable role to play as a countywide resource and should be of value to all residents of Fulton County and Atlanta-in-DeKalb. Central libraries in major metropolitan areas across the country are vibrant, dynamic cultural institutions with a broad array of programming, activities, exhibits and collections that bring value—culturally, educationally, and economically—to their respective downtowns. They also serve everyone within the library system's service area and often beyond. With reference and research services, extensive collections with significant breadth, expertise and service not available at branch libraries, and special collections and archives, the Central Library serves everyone from Alpharetta, Birmingham, and Shakerag to Palmetto, Fairburn, and Rico. The plan provides for $85 million for a new Central Library with the remainder coming from private sources. This is the only project that is partially funded.

The current Auburn Avenue Research Library on African American Culture and History is an immensely valuable institution that all in metro Atlanta should celebrate. It is a leading national and international institution supporting the study and research of the culture and history of African Americans and peoples of the African Diaspora. Unlike our 33 other libraries, Auburn Avenue serves the world-scholars and researchers across the country and around the world as well as residents and visitors of metro Atlanta. The existing facility is attractive and functions well in many respects, however, there are significant facility needs: upgraded HVAC systems that are designed for archival environments; additional archival storage space; expansion of exhibition and gallery areas; and additional program space to allow for larger special events, lectures, and symposia.

The Atlanta-Fulton Public Library System has not completed a thorough, comprehensive analysis of facility needs since the mid-1980s when a bond referendum was approved by voters. This bond issue built many of our existing library facilities. This important, multi-year construction effort resulted in facilities that have served the public well. However, 20 years later, there are notable facility needs-infrastructure improvements, interior updates, and reprogramming of spaces.

The Atlanta-Fulton Public Library System has a proven record of customer satisfaction with over 90% of our citizens who use our services. All of our 34 locations are open gateways to one library, one collection. Our talented, well-trained and empowered staff team is committed to providing excellent library service delivered equitably and with community needs and input at the forefront. We are sustained by strongly supportive elected officials; an effective, policy-making Board of Trustees; enthusiastic, engaged Friends of the Library; and a dedicated Library Foundation.
