Q: What is the CDC moratorium?

A. On September 4, 2020, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention published an Eviction Moratorium, effective until December 31, 2020. The CDC moratorium covers only non-payment evictions filed against residential tenants. It requires that the tenant/renter present the landlord with a declaration that the tenant is not subject to eviction for nonpayment of rent because they:

- Meet the income qualification criteria — tenant received a 2020 federal stimulus, or has income less than $99,000 single or $198,000 joint, or did not pay taxes in 2019;

- Are unable to pay rent due to income loss or extraordinary out of pocket medical expenses;
- Would become homeless or need to "double up" if evicted;
- Will still make partial payments "using best efforts to make timely partial payments that are as close to the full payment as the individual's circumstances may permit, taking into account other non-discretionary expenses;" and
- Have applied to all governmental programs for rent assistance during this health emergency.

Q. Do Landlord-Tenant cases require an affidavit?

A. It depends. Landlords must file a sworn affidavit stating they have not received a declaration from a tenant under the CDC moratorium and that they have not accepted rent after filing a dispossessory action before they will be granted a writ of possession in cases where the tenant does not file an answer.

Additionally, any cases filed March 28, 2020-August 24, 2020 required that the landlord file a CARES Act affidavit, swearing that the affected property was not covered by the protections offered in the CARES Act.

Q. What happens with back rent?

A. All rents remain due and will continue to accrue. The Court has collaborated with community partners to provide rental assistance to aid the parties reimagine eviction as the cure for rental default. As cases resume, whether in person or via Zoom, the court will award judgements based on evidence of unpaid rent and property damages. (If in need of assistance, contact the agencies mentioned in this pamphlet.)

Q. Will the Marshal's Office distribute eviction notices and perform evictions?

A. Yes. The Marshal will continue to distribute first notices on writs and eviction actions after judicial review and order. All writs of possession (tenant evictions) will be reviewed by judges to ensure compliance with all applicable laws, including the CDC moratorium on evictions for nonpayment of rent.

Q. Who may I contact for help?

Several community organizations and non-profits have come forward to offer assistance to parties on the Court's Landlord-Tenant calendars.
